

Income Disclosure

The Ad my Dream (hereinafter "AMD") compensation plan offers exceptional opportunities. Our commercial members can conveniently book advertising and, if necessary, earn relatively high commissions from the business network as an agency.

Although the earning potential is unlimited, individual results of participants can vary greatly depending on their sales skills and their commitment.

AMD does not, therefore, make any representations or warranties regarding possible merits, commissions or other income as there is no experience in the marketing of ad (-vertising) crowdfunding, since the website (www.admydream.com) is the first Ad Crowd Funding project worldwide.

The users of the AMD portal have to agree expressly before using the portal, that no representations or warranties of any kind, nor earnings, commission or other income expectations are made or can be made. These services may be suspended or terminated at any time without prior notice, as far as this is necessary for economic or legal reasons.

In particular, the participants will in principle not earn money by acquiring goods or other advertising services from AMD. All profit or income examples, as well as possible results that may arise in connection with the acquisition of products, for example by obtaining commissions, are only assumptions and estimates. These may vary widely, or even do not occur, or are very limited, as they are dependent on a variety of unforeseeable factors and variables.

No forward-looking statements can be made due to previous commissions or other income, as they are also dependent on a variety of factors and variables that are not foreseeable. The participants accept that they themselves must bear the risk for their actions and decisions. AMD does not guarantee or warrant any kind of income, results or commission payments.

Should you wish to rely on third party commission or other income, AMD hereby expressly disclaims this, as the results can not be duplicated or repeated.
